Three Part Webinar on Practical and Creative Ways to Include Young Children with Special Needs in Physical Activities with their Typical Peers

Presented by:

Diane H. Craft, Ph.D., Professor Emerita

Physical Education Department at SUNY Cortland

Monday, September 21st ~ 3 pm to 4 pm

Monday, September 28th ~ 3 pm to 4 pm

Monday, October 5th ~ 3 pm to 4 pm

Young children need physical activity to help prevent childhood obesity, promote brain development, and develop the habit of a physically active lifestyle. But what physical activities can toddlers and preschoolers with special needs do with their typical peers? This webinar provides a plethora of practical ideas for inclusive physical activities that are developmentally appropriate, use inexpensive equipment, can be done in small spaces, and are FUN for children to play.
